DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims 11-13 drawn to an invention nonelected with traverse in Paper No. 7. A complete reply to the final rejection must include cancellation of nonelected claims or other appropriate action (37 CFR 1.144) See MPEP § 821.01.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 9, 10, 23, 24 and 27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kotraba et al (US 5,186,741). Kotraba et al discloses a direct reduction process in a rotary hearth furnace comprising forming green pellets which are fed over a layer of burnt pellets , granular limestone or granular dolomite on a rotary hearth furnace which conveys the pellets first through a drying and coking zone in which the pellets are dried then travel through a reduction zone and ultimately carried to a discharge zone thereby producing un-fused pellets of reduced iron (col.1, lines 49 to 64) but Kotraba et al does not describe the layer of burnt pellets, granular limestone or granular dolomite as being formed immediately before charging the green pellets but since the green pellets were fed onto the layer it is obvious that the layer was formed before feeding the green pellets into the rotary hearth furnace; furthermore, the step of drying does not intervene between the step of feeding a green pellet and the step of having formed a layer, therefore the Kotraba et al formation of the layer is considered as having been formed immediately before charging the green pellets .

With respect to Claim 27 Kotraba et al discloses forming green pellets approximately 12 to 15 mm in diameter which within the claimed range.

With respect to Claim 28 Kotraba et al discloses that "no more 3 to 4 green pellets" in thickness overlaps the claimed single or double layer.

Claims 25 and 26 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kotraba et al as applied to claim 23 above, and further in view of Hanewald et al (US

4,597,564). Kotraba et al does not disclose the size of the granular dolomite used to form the layer or the depth of the layer but Hanewald et al discloses loose granular refractory material comprising dead burned dolomite having "a grain size of 100% minus 1 cm" to form an insulative layer it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time to form the Kotraba et al layer with "dead burned dolomite grain" (col.3, lines (41 to 46) such as disclosed by Hanewald et al because Kotraba et al requires "granular dolomite" : furthermore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to optimize the depth of the Kotraba et al layer formed from a refractory material such as "dead burned dolomite having "a grain size of 100% minus 1 cm" since the thickness of the insulation is a result effective variable with respect to damaging the hearth as evidenced by Hanewald (col.1, lines 10-65) In re Boesch 205 USPQ 215 .

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
